

DEGREES ARE GIVEN TO 400 GRADUATES

Commencement Exercises of Georgetown University Held
This Afternoon.

ADDRESS TO STUDENTS
BY HENRY S. BOUTELL

Announcement Made of the Plans for Preparatory School and New Science Course.

Purchase of a site for a country preparatory school for Georgetown University, which is to be opened within one year from September, and the institution of a new science course starting next fall, are announcements of the 125th commencement exercises of Georgetown University, which were held this afternoon in the conferring of degrees on 400 graduates from the four schools.

This afternoon the graduating exercises are being held, with the Rev. Alphonse J. Donlon, the first alumnus of Georgetown to become president of the institution, presenting the diplomas.

Honorary degrees are being conferred, as follows:
Doctor of laws—Surgeon General William Crawford Gorgas, U. S. A., for his achievements as sanitation expert for the Panama Canal Zone, Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, and recently appointed senator by the governor general of Canada, and Eugene S. Ives, U. S. A., M. D., for his services as doctor of philosophy—Nelson Hume and Martin Conboy, L. L. B., '95, LL. M., '98.

That cherishing an ideal for peace is not thwarted by preparation of an adequate army and navy was the salient feature of the address to the graduates by Henry S. Boutell, former minister to the Netherlands. In advising the young men who are going out to take their place in the world that they owe society the duty of being good citizens, he discussed some of the things that they must be prepared to fight for, and in this connection advocated a doctrine of preparedness for war.

He said that the history of the world showed war is inevitable, and that the nations of former times who have been passed away neglected their duty in this respect. He insisted that a purpose to "work for peace, but prepare for war" is not inconsistent, and that preparation for war is the most effective agency for promotion of peace. J. Elliott Wright, a Washington boy, was awarded the gold medal in philosophy for having won first honors in the college course, with John J. O'Leary, Jr., taking second honors. Many medals, premiums and other honors were awarded to the graduates of the four schools—arts, dental, medical and law.

The academic procession from Hesley Hall, preceding the formal graduation exercises, was in charge of an alumni committee consisting of Hugh J. Feagan, law, chairman; Dr. E. J. Hoe, dentist; Dr. Charles Griffith, medical, and Rev. Francis McGrath, S. J., college. This committee was in complete charge of the order of exercises, and provided for the comfort of the graduates during the conferring of degrees. Many of the graduates were in the college course, with John J. O'Leary, Jr., taking second honors. Many medals, premiums and other honors were awarded to the graduates of the four schools—arts, dental, medical and law.

The announcement that a site for the new preparatory school for Georgetown had been purchased was made at the smoker tendered by the alumni in honor of the graduates, in the quadrangle last evening. It was received with vigorous applause. As the plans were outlined by President Donlon and by George E. Hamilton of the alumni board of regents, this is to be a model preparatory school, where, besides the regular features, the country school idea will be worked out. Students will be welcome to stay all day at the college for luncheon, etc.

Site of New School.

The property purchased is about nine miles from the university grounds, on the old Rockville pike and close to Garrett Park, and comprises ninety acres. It is the offshoot property, facing the famous old Colby estate. It is bounded on the east by the Rockville pike and on the west by the trolley line. Architects and landscape artists are already drawing plans for the college plant. Work on the building is to begin this summer. At first there is to be but one main building, to be constructed on the unit plan so that it can be expanded with the growth of the college.

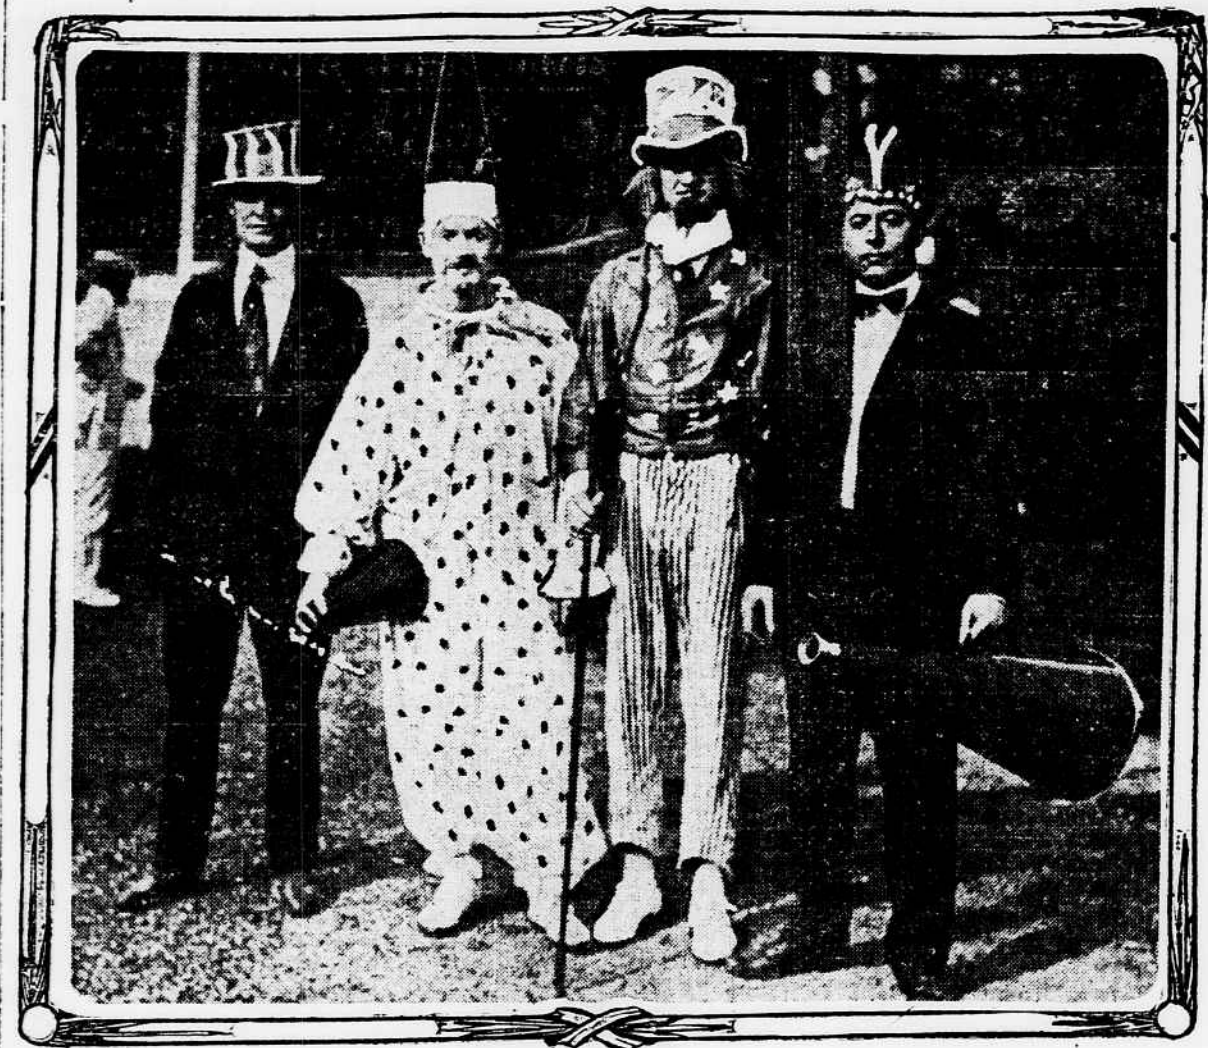

The establishment of the new science course next year, Father Donlon explained, is in line with the policy of development which the alumni board of regents is putting in force. The first event of this program was the establishment of the premedical course two years ago.

The quadrangle gathering was presided over by Judge Charles A. De Courcy of Lawrence, Mass., who had just been re-elected president of the national society of Georgetown alumni.

Additional Officers.

The other officers elected are: First

KEEP BURLESQUE PARADE OF GEORGETOWN ALUMNI "IN FORM"

IN HIGH HAT, JUDGE M. M. DOYLE, ASSISTANT MARSHAL, CLOWN, DR. S. LOGAN OWENS; UNCLE SAM, JOHN MURPHY; WITH INDIAN HEADGEAR, WILLIAM A. SCHLOBOHM, MARSHAL, AND CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON ARRANGEMENTS.

vice president, Dr. William Barton of Washington, D. C., second vice president, Anthony A. Hirst of Philadelphia, Pa.; third vice president, Daniel W. O'Donoghue of Washington, D. C.; fourth vice president, J. Lynch Pendergast of New York, N. Y.; fifth vice president, J. Neal Power of San Francisco, Cal.; treasurer, Hugh J. Feagan, secretary, Henry R. Gowen. Executive committee—Dr. John Foot of Washington, D. C.; Dr. S. Logan Owens of Washington, D. C.; Joseph L. Weller of Washington, D. C.; John J. Hamilton of Washington, D. C.; Francis P. Martin of Johnston, Pa.; William J. Waznespack of New Orleans, La.; James P. Duffy of Rochester, N. Y.; John S. Leahy of St. Louis, Mo.

Slogan for Coming Year.

President De Courcy told the 500 alumni gathered in the quadrangle that the slogan for the next year was to increase the number of enrolled and paying alumni to more than 1,000, all working actively for the advancement and growth of the university. Martin Conboy, who received an honorary degree today, was the last speaker at the alumni smoker. He is a Washington boy who is practicing law in New York. Conspicuous in the table decorations was the silver loving-cup presented to President Donlon of the university by the alumni.

Tribute was paid to the memory of Rev. Jerome Daugherty, a former rector of the university, who died last year, and resolutions of eulogy were put into the alumni records. Then followed a song fest, in which all of the old college songs were indulged in, and all the old favorites, including George H. O'Connor and Philip Scantland, were called upon to contribute solos. This feature was in charge of a committee consisting of Dr. William C. Gwynn, chairman, Frank Kane, Fred Stohman, C. C. James, Roy Adams, C. C. Miller and Dr. Frank Castled.

While the "sing" and smoker were in progress in the quadrangle a formal senior farewell dance was in progress in the Ryan gymnasium. This was in charge of Barry Nolan, chairman, John Conroy of the college, Dr. J. D. Cogan of the dental school, Fred Stohman, C. C. James, Roy Adams, C. C. Miller and Dr. Frank Castled.

Class Day Literary Features.

The class day literary program was "Sons of Georgetown," chorus, class history, Francis A. J. Connelly; class song, J. Elliott Wright, Jr.; class oration, John J. O'Leary, Jr.; farewell oration, William J. Cullinan.

Class officers—President, Edmund J. O'Leary; vice president, Bernard E. Shlesinger; and treasurer, J. Bernard Edmonds.

Following the formal class day exercises the burlesque parade of alumni, Dr. S. Logan Owens, made up as a clown, caused a great deal of amusement by his industry in keeping things out of order, and John Murphy as "Uncle Sam" preserved an unperturbed mien of "watchful waiting" and strict "neutrality." He several times assured the clown that he was "too proud to fight."

The best little group of funmakers was mustered into a rude band by "Bill" Leahy. They were all members of law, 1912, and kept the action lively. In this group were Charles Farrell, William E. Leahy, Charles A. Smith, John F. McCarron, F. D. Davidson, Harry J. Gerrity, J. F. Moran, J. Forrest Kelly, Thomas F. Sullivan, Robert S. Regar, Wilson F. McCray, Harry C. Cox, Frank L. Brown, J. S. Stephens, John F. McHale, Leo J. Dougherty, Louis L. Korn and Edmund C. Breese.

Game of "Really" Base Ball.

The proposed "farce" ball game between "has beens" from the medical and law schools proved a misnomer, for some of the old stars actually came back and played the style of long ago. Well as he ever did. He had the reach, and was picking up all sorts of short throws. Charlie Martell caught in short-season form and whipped several down to second base with surprising accuracy. His best play of the day was when he caught "Phil" Pendergast out while he was sliding for home in the third inning. "Tom" Cantwell put up a good exhibition at shortstop, and Finkel had a whole lot of fun on the mound, allowing the Medicos but three hits.

There were many amusing features, such as a marvelous left-hand catch in right field by Conrad Reid—with both his eyes tightly closed—whereby he cut off a run. Then Dr. Owens, still in his clown uniform, lived up to the part when, lacking a glove, he used his megaphone to catch a hot one in center field, and the ball got so tightly wedged into the megaphone that two runs went across the plate before he could extricate it.

The all-round clever playing of "Doc" Gibson at third was the feature of the contest, and he played a better game than he ever did when playing regularly in his student days.

The game lasted six innings. Law won, 3 to 2. There were left-hand errors, a wild throw to first by Furey and a fielding error by Dugan. Law got 7 hits and Medical 4.

Dr. O'Brien, physical instructor, was umpire, with Lawrence Murray as his assistant. Charlie Cox, graduate manager of athletics, was official scorer.

Henry S. Boutell Addresses

Graduates on Citizenship

and the Magna Charta

In addressing the Georgetown University graduates, Henry S. Boutell, former minister to the Netherlands, said, in part:

"I see before me the vanguard of a great army, that is renewed eternally, that never disbands, the immortal army of the youth of a great nation. And I feel as the veteran feels who watches from his shattered ranks the oncoming of the unbroken battalions of fresh recruits. On behalf of the veterans, I welcome you to the ranks of militant citizenship."

Your thoughts today are on the future and its triumphs. You are not all going to be doctors, lawyers, dentists, bankers, nor farmers; but all of you are going to be citizens, and we veterans expect that you will be good citizens. So it is proper in this hour, which marks the end of your years of study and the beginning of your years of work, to consider what this citizenship is and why I think that a good citizen is a fighting citizen."

He reminded them of the evolution that citizenship has passed through already, and then moralized if "in these times that try men's souls, when even strong men are losing faith, we cannot find inspiration, hope and courage in the belief that there will be developed a still broader citizenship, growing out of more exalted ideals of the destiny of the race, an international citizenship."

Inequalities Develop Rapidly.

"We often speak with unreflecting enthusiasm of the Declaration of Independence, as if the ideal of citizenship reached its full development in the great American charter. But our forefathers, who asserted that 'all men are created equal' demonstrated plainly their firm belief that inequalities develop very rapidly immediately after creation. To ascertain how great these inequalities were, we have only to consult those well known forgotten but intensely and illuminating documents, the constitutions adopted by the thirteen original states and the Constitution with the Declaration of Independence."

"It took nearly seven centuries and the best intelligence of England and the United States to develop from the ideal of citizenship represented by the 'liber homo' of Magna Charta the ideal of citizenship represented in the Constitution of the United States by 'any person.'"

"Let us consider for a few moments the present tendency in the evolution of popular government, and note a—"
